WORD SEARCH

Allisia Houghtaling, from Where I Go When We Mess Up

Dawn DeDeaux, Flood then Fire, 2008
 Burned wood, rusted metal, found objects, dimensions variable
 Collection of the Artist
 Dawn DeDeaux, Gulf to Galaxy, 2021
 Two tons of shattered glass, wooden and aluminum armature
 Collection of the Artist

Broken people like broken glass, scattered and shattered
 Going to class all just to pass, not caring about what happens after
 In a sea full of people there lies much pain, but there is beauty in that
 In that large sea, there is also so much to be thankful for, happiness, and love to share.
 The sharp truths and the shiny tears, the beaming smiles and blissful silence.
 They mingle and mix, becoming one large body. This is art.

A poem by Kalya Jackson, in response to Gulf to Galaxy and Flood then Fire

Doodles by Hazel Tao, a response to Dawn DeDeaux, The End, 2013, Collection of the Artist, Photo by Dawn DeDeaux © Dawn DeDeaux

YOU'RE A TEEN IN A SOCIETY
WHERE THEY TELL YOU TO GROW UP OR SHUT UP.
WHICH WILL YOU CHOOSE?
